Special Cable to The Tribune

Considered the result of the influence of Captain S. M. Hopkins, of Washington, D. C., an intimate friend of Villa, Hopkins arranged the conference at Nyack, July 7, between Romon Denogere, reporting the government, and Miguel Diaz Lombardo, a representation of the recommendative of Villa. Iglesias Calderon was known to favor the agreement. A measurement of inform Villa of the recommendations, Villa left Chimhahua July 18, by a way of Muzquiz, met the emissary, and his agreement to surrender followed.

The presence of General Joaquin Amaro, commanding the campaign, has made any negotiations there impossible, because of the bitter personal enmity between them. The impression here to-night is one of incredulity, most unbelieving, and most people are inclined to believe it is another Villa trick. The government officials are logical effect to be excellent, since Willa has boome a prototype of revolutionary activity, and his surrender will greatly assist in discouraging budding revolutionists.
